Mark E. Servis, M.D.

Clinical Interests

Mark E. Servis, a national leader in medical education and a member of the UC Davis School of Medicine faculty for more than 20 years, has earned a national reputation for his approaches to integrating family and community with patient care. As an examiner with the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology and a member of the Residency Review Committee for Psychiatry of the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education, he works to ensure the high quality of medical school curricula nationwide. Servis also chairs the U.S. Medical Licensing Examination Step 2 Committee for Psychiatry, and he has served as both program chair and president of the American Association of Directors of Psychiatric Residency Training, the largest professional organization for educators in psychiatry.

His research interests include medical and residency education, cognitive models for the development of diagnostic expertise, psychiatry and spirituality, teaching professionalism and ethics, consultation-liaison psychiatry and psychosomatic medicine, treating severe personality disorders and neuropsychiatry. An expert in integrating psychiatric care with primary-care settings, he has pioneered combined residency training programs in family medicine and psychiatry, and internal medicine and psychiatry.
