Staff Profile - Meet Fred J. Meyers, M.D.
Frederick J. Meyers, M.D., M.A.C.P., oversees the research, teaching, clinical care and community engagement missions in close coordination with leadership across UC Davis Health System and the larger UC Davis community.

Meyers is a long-time leader of the hospice and palliative care movement in the United States, establishing programs that are now national models for providing compassionate end-of-life care. He is well known for his work in “simultaneous care,” a model of care that allows cancer patients with advanced disease to receive both investigational treatments and palliative care. Meyers was Medical Director for Hospice from 1986 until 2009 and continues to maintain an active role with the medical on call team.

Meyers serves on the American Cancer Society’s California Division Board of Directors.
