Training for New Trainers
In order to train courses offered through Human Resources Training and Development, candidates must complete our Train the Trainer course (#07603). This class familiarizes participants with basic Adult Learning Theory; an examination of the differences between delivery and facilitation of program content; strategies for effective class management and assessment of other critical trainer functions. Candidates may enroll in the course by accessing the UC Learning Center.