
MAGNET QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK
April 14, 2013

How do you do peer review on your unit/dept/clinic?

Peer review occurs in "real time" with someone of your same role. Feedback is given to the individual nurse and is used to promote professional growth. Peer Review is used as a learning opportunity and is not anonymous. Nurses work in a respectful culture and peer review occurs in the best interest of the patient, to ensure patients receive the highest quality care.

Examples of peer review

- Bedside report/Shift report
- Patient handoff
- Competencies
- Case review
- Plan of care
- Journal Club
- Skills Labs
- Chart review
- Precepting

How do you maintain competencies on your unit?

If you are not comfortable with a piece of equipment or procedure, how do you get more specific training?
