

Timothy K. Williams, M.D.

Clinical Interests

Dr. Williams specializes in vascular and endovascular surgery. Specific interests include the management of aortic disease, cerebrovascular disease, peripheral arterial occlusive disease, as well as visceral and renal disease. He also treats a variety of venous pathology. Additionally, Dr. Williams is an active duty member of the US Air Force.

Dr. Williams believes that optimal patient care involves lifestyle and risk factor modification, individualized care while observing recognized best practices, and a collaborative relationship between the patient and provider. He recognizes the importance of patient education across the spectrum of care, from preventative medicine to acute illness, and incorporates this into his daily clinical practice.
