Philosophy of Care

Choosing family practice made sense to Dr. Siemens, since she enjoys people and likes taking care of newborns, children, adults and the elderly. She values the long-term relationships with patients and their families that primary care medicine offers. She approaches all her patients as individuals, paying attention to the details of their lives that make their health-care needs unique. Dr. Siemens sees her practice as a partnership with patients in which she educates and guides them to make choices that will help them live long and happy lives.

Dr. Siemens advocates good physical health for her patients as well as solid relationships with the people who are part of their daily lives as a means to healthy living. She believes that all patients deserve high-quality, basic medical care.
