

Erik Fernandez y Garcia, M.D., M.P.H.

Philosophy of Care

It is Dr. Fernandez y Garcia's goal to address pediatric healthcare and health maintenance through the lens of family dynamics and cultural humility. He strives to form cooperative relationships with the parents of patients and their communities to ensure that his patient (the child) reaches his or her fullest potential.

He hopes to propagate this philosophy by teaching pediatric residents at the UC Davis General Pediatric Clinic and the Wellspace Oak Park Clinic, and UC Davis medical students in the "Transforming Education and Community Health for Medical Students" (TEACH-MS program). He also brings this philosophy of care to his research in pediatric-based intergenerational mental healthcare.

Clinical Interests

Dr. Fernandez y Garcia's clinical interests include asthma, nutrition and sports medicine.

Research/Academic Interests

Dr. Fernandez y Garcia's research interests focus on racial and ethnic healthcare disparities, parental depression identification and reduction of parental depression in pediatrics, and residential cultural competency education.
