

Thomas A. Bullen, M.D.

Philosophy of Care	I enjoy children and their families and the relationship a pediatrician has with them. I look on my practice as a partnership with my patients and their families. I emphasize an active participation with the family in the care of their children. I try to provide education to help parents understand their children's normal growth and development, as well as specific illnesses that may affect them. Through University Pediatric Associates, I have the unique ability to provide my patients with the full spectrum of good primary, pediatric care. We also have a good working relationship with other specialists in all areas of pediatrics.
