

Philip C. Mack, Ph.D.

Clinical Interests	Dr. Mack conducts molecular biology and molecular pharmacology studies for the UC Davis Cancer Center, the California Cancer Consortium, and the Southwest Oncology Group. For the past twelve years, Dr. Mack has conducted basic and translational research, with an emphasis on lung cancer. His investigations include molecular and cellular effects of novel anticancer agents in lung cancer models. Dr. Mack is Director of the UC Davis Cancer Center Molecular Pharmacology shared resource, Director of Basic Sciences for the California Cancer Consortium and Associate Director of the Southwest Oncology Group Lung Translational Medicine Committee.
Title	Associate Adjunct Professor Director of Molecular Pharmacology
Specialty	Cancer , Hematology and Oncology, Molecular Biology/Medicine
Department	Internal Medicine
Division	Hematology and Oncology
Clinic	UC Davis Cancer Center
Education	Ph.D., UC Davis, Davis, California, 1997 B.A., UC Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz, California, 1991
Professional Memberships	American Association for Cancer Research American Society of Clinical Oncology International Association for the Study of Lung Cancer Southwest Oncology Group
Honors and Awards	Helen and Christine Landgraf Memorial Research Fund Award, 2002
Select Recent Publications	For a comprehensive list of Dr. Mack's publications, please click here (opens new window).

© 2015 UC Regents