

John C. Hunter, M.D.

Philosophy of Care Dr. Hunter has always emphasized patient safety and comfort, cost effectiveness and use of the most appropriate imaging in the evaluation of musculoskeletal disease processes.

Clinical Interests Dr. Hunter has always tried to utilize state-of-the-art imaging techniques to evaluate and follow the course of musculoskeletal disease processes. His interests include acute trauma, sports medicine and rheumatologic diseases. He has pioneered the use of special imaging techniques in the evaluation of gout.

Research/Academic Interests Dr. Hunter's clinical interests lie in the advanced imaging of musculoskeletal disease using techniques that include magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), computed tomography (CT) and ultrasound to make the diagnosis. Interventional procedures for diagnosis and pain management using conventional and advanced techniques are another area of interest. He has been a pioneer in the field of Internet-based teaching and continuing medical education. He co-chairs a highly regarded weekly international teleconference of Musculoskeletal radiologists who share interesting and problem cases. Magnetic resonance imaging of sports injuries is also an area of ongoing research. His strong interest in the imaging of arthritis has led him to involvement in projects on the use of PET/CT and MRI in rheumatoid arthritis and the dual energy CT evaluation of gout.
