Save the date! May 6 Sacramento

UC-wide Health Sciences Leadership Development Conference

Mark your calendars for Friday, May 6, 2016, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., for the inaugural UC-wide Leadership Development Conference.

Featuring a keynote address by Hannah Valantine, NIH Chief Officer for Scientific Workforce Diversity.

Pathways to Leadership and Inclusion Excellence

This exciting conference will:

- ENGAGE UC health-sciences faculty, staff assembly, and AMWA chapter presidents
- DEVELOP the next generation of leaders in biomedical sciences
- SHARE best practices and lessons learned by exemplary leaders
- OFFER compelling Ted-type talks
- PROVIDE skills and thematic-based training sessions
- NETWORK and dialogue through a conference Tweet portal
- FOSTER pathways to leadership for women in the biomedical academic pipeline
- HIGHLIGHT the diversity of mentoring in different disciplines
- INCLUDE small group discussions on work-life integration, maintaining resilience, building successful teams and raising your visibility in the university environment

So save the date!
Join colleagues from throughout the University of California to enhance leadership in medicine and health sciences and help nurture the next generation of academic leaders.

Look for further conference details in the coming month. For information, contact Larry Jacinth at ljjacinth@UCDavis.edu.