Applications Being Accepted for School at Work (SAW) Program Through May 31, 2014

“School at Work has given me more confidence in the work that I do and also motivated me to go back to college.”—2013 SAW Graduate.

As part of the UC Davis Health System’s commitment to career development and succession planning, Training and Development is now accepting nominations for this year’s School at Work (SAW) Program through May 31. Now in its eighth year at UCDHS, this program was specifically developed for health-care facilities with a primary focus of providing entry-level employees an opportunity for career advancement and continuing education.

This year’s SAW program will be held from 9:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. every Wednesday beginning July 2, 2014 to graduation on January 7, 2015.

To be eligible, nominees must be career, non-probationary employees nominated by their current supervisors using the SAW Nomination Form. Selected employees must complete the entire six-month program. Program requirements include 2.5 hours of mandatory class attendance once per week and an additional 2 hours per week of self-study during nonworking hours. During facilitator-led class sessions, students will participate in discussions, interactive online exercises and computer based coursework. SAW program topics include:

- Workplace applications of reading, writing, grammar and math
- Healthcare and medical terminology
- Career development and mastering workplace competencies

Nomination Deadline

Completed forms may be submitted via email to Judyth.Isaman@ucdmc.ucdavis.edu, interoffice mail or in person to Training and Development, Ticon III, Room 2600. All SAW Nominations must be received by Training and Development by May 31, 2014.

School at Work (SAW) Program participants must also pass a reading comprehension assessment.
