YOU'RE INVITED TO PARTICIPATE in the inaugural session of the Family Caregiving Institute's Community of Scholars Research Seminar. The seminar begins with the presentation, “Improving caregiver preparedness and skill? Caregiver and home health nurse perspectives,” by two nationally recognized experts in assessing caregiver skills and preparedness, Patricia Archbold and Barbara Stewart. Following the presentation, the group will review and discuss draft family caregiving domains and competencies that are under development by the Family Caregiving Institute.

The goal of the Family Caregiving Community of Scholars is to bring together faculty, clinicians and staff with an interest in family caregiving education, policy and research to discuss projects in progress, research methods, proposal ideas, or draft publications.
