“The Warmth of Other Suns: The Epic Story of America’s Great Migration,” by Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Isabel Wilkerson, chronicles the migration of almost six million African-Americans between 1915 and 1970 to escape the Jim Crow south. This Great Migration changed the face of America. Discussions will explore the connections between this epic migration and social determinants of health and health disparities, highlighting those who made that migration to the Sacramento region and are now among the African-American geriatric population served by UC Davis Health System. Books are available for $11.95 at the UC Davis Health System bookstore or through online retailers.
