Dear Colleagues,

Are you a minority mid-career faculty (MD, PhD, or MD/PhD) holding a medical school appointment at the associate professor level, have or want a leadership position within your discipline or department, program, or the Schools of Health and want to improve the knowledge and skills required to continue advancing to leadership roles in academic medicine? If so, please consider applying to the AAMC Minority Mid-Career Professional Development Seminar.

The seminar will be held June 14-16, 2018 in Washington, D.C. and applications to AAMC will close April 18th. Additional information can be found at: https://www.aamc.org/members/leadership/catalog/452848/mid-careerminorityfacultyleadershipseminar.html. The Dean’s office has approved a process whereby we will pre-review nominations, or self-nominations, and provide the Dean with recommendations for our school’s candidate(s).

If you are interested in being considered for the AAMC Minority Mid-Career Professional Development Seminar, please send a letter of interest addressed to me (avillablanca@ucdavis.edu) with copy to Rebecca Moncada (remoncada@ucdavis.edu) no later than March 23, 2018.

The letter should clearly state the following:
(1) the reasons you are a good fit for the seminar,
(2) your career goals and leadership aspirations, and
(3) how attending the seminar will help you achieve those goals and advance your career.

Candidates who have submitted pre applications for this AAMC program in the past, must also address how the application has been strengthened. If selected for SOM support (registration and travel), applications will be due electronically to AAMC by April 18th.

I hope you will consider this excellent seminar and opportunity!

Thank you!
Dr. Villablanca

Amparo Villablanca, MD
Professor, Cardiovascular Medicine
Frances Lazda Endowed Chair and Director, Women's Cardiovascular Medicine (womenshearthealth.ucdavis.edu)
Immediate Past Director, Women in Medicine and Health Sciences (http://ucdmc.ucdavis.edu/wimhs/)

University of California, Davis
One Shields Ave., TB 172
Davis, CA. 95616

Phone: 530-752-0718
Fax: 530-752-3264
email: avillablanca@ucdavis.edu